PENSACOLA, FLORIDA, TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 9, 1908.

We Congratulate You, General.

After a discussion covering a period of two weeks in which The Journal has been trying to get Albert W. Gilchrist, candidate for governor, to make a direct and definite statement either for or against the preservation of the Primary System, we have been successful in securing one as follows:

DeFuniak, Fla., June 7, 1908.
Editor Pensacola Journal.
I have seen to-day, for the first time, the discussion between yourself and Mr. J. O. LaFontaine, about the Primary System. I regret your trying to saddle on me what some certain newspapers express in relation to the Primary System, or in relation to any other matters. I am a very busy man, trying to stump the state. I am physically worn out. So I answer to the point, using the language of your editorial:

"The Journal has just one object in this discussion and that is to get a direct statement from General Gilchrist as to his position on the Primary. If he expects to help his friends defeat it, we want to know that fact."

Answer: I do not "expect" or intend to help my friends, or to help my opponents, or to help anyone else "defeat" the Primary.

"If he repudiates the policy advocated by his friends and pledges himself to preserve the Primary, we want to know that."

I pledge myself to preserve the Primary. I have nothing to do with what my friends are advocating. It is impossible for me to keep up with the press. They speak for themselves. I am glad of all the support given me by any person or persons, newspaper or newspapers. I would even be glad of your support. I regret you went wrong.

Very truly,
ALBERT W. GILCHRIST.
The Journal is more than pleased to receive and publish this direct and definite statement by which General Gilchrist pledges himself to preserve the Primary, and we congratulate him upon it.

Now, if the unexpected should happen, and General Gilchrist should be elected governor we have his recorded pledge that, despite his friends, he will preserve the Primary. The demand for this expression from Candidate Gilchrist has been very insistent and one which he could not well resist. The Journal is glad therefore that its efforts were successful in putting him straight on that question before the people of Florida.

A Washington correspondent says "Florida has elected an anti-Bryan delegation, following the lead of New Jersey and New York." This is another verification of the old adage that you must go from home to learn the news.—Gainesville Sun.

The original news dispatch saying that an anti-Bryan delegation had been elected was sent out from Jacksonville in the face of the fact that only delegates elected (four out of ten) were all Bryan men and that the total vote received by the Bryan delegates was very much larger than the total vote received by the anti-Bryan delegates. When it requires lying to bolster up a cause in the face of definite election returns, the cause must be in a bad fix.

Publishing A Newspaper.
There are few business enterprises more precarious than that of publishing a daily newspaper. While the public is very familiar with the product of the newspaper plant, it has little conception of the cost in money, energy, and brains required to turn out that product; nor of the likelihood of failure despite a liberal investment of all these. Like a costly steamship, a newspaper must have a careful and experienced commander and even then it may go to destruction by some error of judgment.

The list of newspaper wrecks in the United States is a long one and is constantly being lengthened, but still there are plenty of people who are anxious to go into the business. They think that all that is necessary is to get a good up-to-date plant, with a smart fellow as editor, and success is assured.

The smart fellow is often one who has no capital of his own to invest, but is able to demonstrate to those who have, that it is bound to pay; and this is all the easier if certain interests are imbued with the idea that they need a paper which shall be run in their behalf.

Perhaps it was owing to some such circumstance that the Morning World was started in New Orleans last December. At any rate, after a seemingly promising start and with a large number of stockholders, among them many of the most successful business men of New Orleans, the Morning World ceased publication a few days ago and its fine plant is to be sold to pay debts of the corporation.

Why the newspaper could not thrive in a large city like New Orleans it is hard to say, but the most probable reason is that the public did not want it and would not support it; though it might have been that good management was lacking.

Hardly has the senate adjourned before the president puts into office the nominees the senate refused to confirm. And yet the senate rebuked him for trying in the same way to give an objectionable postmaster to Pensacola. After a lesson so recent a repetition of the offense would seem to call for harsh measures. While he has the right to supply vacancies occurring during the recess, is it any more than a quibble to claim such instances as falling within the law? The pretext is about equal to the "imaginary interval" he once supposed to exist between an adjournment at noon and 12 o'clock on the same day or between his charge that Parker spoke falsely because he cited a fact that "could not have come fairly to his knowledge."—Jacksonville Times-Union.

We think our contemporary is slightly mixed in its understanding of the cases referred to. In the Pensacola case the senate had absolutely rejected the appointment. In the other cases we understand that the senate simply failed to act upon them. The rejection of an appointment in one case and the failure to take action of any kind in another, are two separate and distinct things.

Even in Florida we cannot run a campaign without money and a national campaign as now conducted requires about $2,000,000 in cash. Now, when all agree that the corporations must not furnish the money, will the voters pony up? The officeholders may not be assessed without a violation of the law. Those benefited by the tariff can neither be "fried" nor assessed and it may safely be predicted that the call for individual dollars will not be heeded, the voter has lost the contribution habit. A call on the national treasury has not yet been legalized; what will the committees do to raise the wind? We shall see, but we hope no attempt to fool the public will be countenanced.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Well, perhaps our esteemed contemporary can suggest a solution of the problem. The Times-Union seems to be an adept at asking suggestive questions. It could render a real service by answering some of them.

Of the new chairman of the state democratic executive committee, the Madison New Enterprise, his home paper, says:
"Madison county is honored by the distinguished honor bestowed upon one of our citizens in the selection of Charles E. Davis as chairman of the state democratic executive committee. We rejoice that Madison county is at last coming to the front in matters of state and we are proud of the fact that in Mr. Davis we have a man in every way qualified to wear any honors which may come his way with becoming modesty and unimpeachable ability." worthy honor most worthily bestowed.

VOX POPULI

Editor Pensacola Journal:
My friendship for Major MacGibbon of which Mr. Boyett complains, is based upon fifteen years close acquaintance, and being well founded, is perfectly proper.

That is the whole extent of my connection with and interest in Major MacGibbon or his campaign.

On account of this friendship, Mr. Boyett absurdly questions Major MacGibbon's democracy.

Some may think that I a Republican, am not qualified to judge of Democrats, and to such I will say that I am an expert, having made a thorough study of Democrats of all varieties.

In fact I know more about Democrats than I do about Republicans, seeing that nearly all of my associates, since the age of eighteen, have been Democrats.

I sometimes think that it is this thorough knowledge of Democrats that makes me such an ardent Republican.

When I consider the different kinds of Democrats that I have made a study of, viz—Palmer & Buckner Democrats, Bryan-or-Die Democrats, Prohibition Democrats, etc., I unconsciously recall the story of the Tower of Babel.

But the funniest Democrats that have ever come under my observation are the Free Trade Democrats that believe in protection for Florida Oranges, Alabama Iron, Louisiana Sugar and Texas Wool.

I have a curiosity to see a Jeffersonian Democrat, but I believe the species is extinct like the Dodo bird. By the way, Jefferson these days would be called a Republican Exactly.

These few words should convince Mr. Boyett that I know what I am talking about when I say, after fifteen years' acquaintance, that my old friend Major MacGibbon is a Democrat.

That very title, "Major," is one that I gave my friend long ago, because of the fact that he is an old-line, militant Democrat, and as such deserves a military title.

It is entirely possible for sensible people to differ as to the one statesmanship possessed respectively by Messrs. Roosevelt and Bryan, and differ upon all of the National issues, and still retain each other's respect, good-will and friendship.

I am glad to say that this feeling is on the increase throughout the United States.

Friendship is a great thing, and before I would lose friends on account of politics, I would quit politics.

I would be sorry indeed if my friendship should cost Major MacGibbon, or any other Democratic friend, a single vote and I cannot believe that it will.

Aside from the matter of friendship, I have the same interest as a citizen and taxpayer in an honest and economical County Government that good Democrats have, and on June 16th I will be sorry for one of the few times in my life, that I am not a Democrat, and am not, therefore, able to assist my friend with even one vote!

It seems to me, that Mr. McMillan's friends ought to be able to make a stronger argument in favor of retaining him in office than the one which Mr. Boyett makes, viz—that I, a lone Republican, openly showed an interest in the election results while upon a business trip to Millview the day after election!

F. F. BINGHAM.
(NOTE—A few days ago the Journal inadvertently admitted to its Vox Populi department a communication which discussed one of the county candidates. This was contrary to the Journal's rule, but having admitted the first article it became necessary, in fairness, to admit answers to it. We believe however, that the subject has now been fully discussed, and shall have to deny further discussion of the county candidates themselves until after the primary.—Editor Journal)

A SUPPORTER OF
MR. MACGIBBON

Pensacola, Fla., June 8.
Editor Pensacola Journal.

I noticed in a recent issue of your paper an article assailing the democracy of MacGibbon, who is a candidate for clerk of the circuit court of Escambia county, written by Mr. Boyett on account of Mr. Bingham supporting Mr. MacGibbon.

Now, if this is the only cause that any one can find against Mr. MacGibbon for not voting for him on June 16, 1908, he will be elected by a big majority and go in office without a blemish on his character, and a victory of democracy that he has always been so loyal to.

He has never been guilty of slinging mud in his whole campaign. He has conducted it in such a manner that the hand of democracy will be always extended to him for his loyalty to the democratic party. On June 16, 1908, it will be a Mr. McMillan, but it will not be Mr. McMillan, C. W. JONES.

HOTEL SHOULD BE NAMED THE MALLORY, SAYS BINGHAM

Editor Pensacola Journal.

As to a name for the new hotel, permit me to suggest "The Mallory." To start with, and looking at it from the practical, hotel standpoint, the name will throughout the north suggest "Florida," and throughout the south suggest "Pensacola."

Now say it, "The Mallory." It sounds good.

And of course it would be sheer presumption for me to enumerate the many other reasons in favor of this name.

F. F. BINGHAM.

COMMANDANT OF NAVY YARD SUGGESTS HOTEL WARRINGTON

Pensacola, Fla., June 8, 1908.

Editor Pensacola Journal.

Complying with the request of The Journal that your readers propose names for the new hotel to be built in Pensacola, I suggest the name of the first commandant of the Pensacola navy yard, Warrington.

Lewis Warrington, a native of Virginia, entered the navy as a midshipman in the year 1800 and as a midshipman saw active service in the war with Tripoli, being attached to one of the ships of Commodore Preble's squadron. He was promoted to Lieutenant in 1807 and was serving in that capacity the same year on board the frigate Chesapeake when the deplorable affair between that vessel and the British frigate Leopard occurred. In 1814 Warrington, then a master-commandant, or commander as the rank is now called, was in command of the sloop of war Peacock in her fight with the British brig Epervier off Cape Canaveral, Florida. The Epervier was captured by the Peacock and Warrington was promoted to the rank of captain.

Sailing to the East Indies in the Peacock late in 1814, Captain Warrington engaged and captured in the Strait of Sunda the armed brig Nautilus; this was in June, 1815, after the war with England was ended, and the Nautilus was released the day after the battle, as soon as Warrington became convinced that peace had been declared.

After returning to the United States after this cruise, Captain Warrington held many important naval positions both afloat and ashore. He died in Washington in 1851, being at the time chief of the bureau of ordinance and hydrography in the navy department. As the first commandant of this navy yard in the '30s of the last century he is said to have been very energetic in developing the station, and probably rendered as useful service in promoting the interests of Pensacola as any one of his time. It would therefore be a fitting tribute to his memory to call your big hotel The Warrington.

F. W. BENNETT,
Commander, U. S. Navy,
Commanding Navy Yard.

CALL THE NEW HOTEL AFTER ANDREW JACKSON

Pensacola, Fla., June 8, 1908.

Editor Pensacola Journal.

I think a very appropriate name for the big hotel would be Andrew Jackson, as old Hick captured Pensacola in the latter part of 1814 near the close of the war of 1812, a short time before he fought the battle of New Orleans on the 8th of June, 1815.

FRANK SUAREZ.

"THE PENSACOLA" SEEMS TO BE VERY APPROPRIATE

Pensacola, Fla., June 8, 1908.

Editor Pensacola Journal.

Why not call the new hotel "The Pensacola"? It seems to me to be the most appropriate name.

A SUBSCRIBER.

My name for the new hotel would be "Imperial Hotel."

KEHOE FOR CONGRESS IS ADVOCATED.

Panama City Pilot.

It is unfortunate that a second primary should be necessary to settle the matter of a representative for this district, but such is the case, and the fight for the position may said to have been just commenced.

The Pilot has consistently and continuously supported J. W. Kehoe for the position. Mr. Kehoe is a West Florida man; he knows this district and its needs as no one else that has been in the race knows them; he is not the candidate of any one locality, but can conscientiously work for every part of the district.

It has been charged by his opponents that as he now lives in Pensacola he will work for that port alone. This is a very silly charge. In the first place Pensacola requires nothing in the way of appropriations from congress for harbor improvement, and what is required in connection with that port will be obtained through the fact that it is the seat of the government navy yard, and would be a government and not a commercial proposition. But Mr. Kehoe is not the kind of a man that would aid any one place to the detriment of the others. Men that make such charges but reflect their own attitude upon such questions.

Mr. Kehoe will work for the improvement of St. Andrews Bay, as we know he will for Apalachicola and Carrabelle. He knows that all these places require governmental aid, and that they are deserving of it. Nor will he be other than fair with any

It would be very interesting to know how many years your family physician has prescribed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs, colds, and all forms of lung troubles. Ask him the next time you see him. We know physicians who have used it for over half a century.

He was the high man in the first primary.

He will win in the second primary.

He offers youth, energy, ability, integrity, determination and a splendid ambition for the service of his countrymen.

CARD OF THANKS.

While thanking my friends for their liberal and cordial support in the first primary, I now request one and all to be equally as liberal in their support on June 16th, next, at the second primary.

Lacking only a few votes of having a clear majority over both of my opponents at the first, I feel assured of a majority at the second primary, that will be large enough to be convincing.

With my friends on the alert from now until the close of the polls on June 16th, there will be no doubt about the result.
